Makes Sly Fight Against Anderson Bill Relating to Extension of Corporate Limits.

The expected happened yesterday, when the House of Delegates voted non-concur-rence in the Senate amendments in relation to the right of eminent domain.

The consideration of the amended bill furnished Mr. Duko an opportunity to make a vigorous speech in opposition to the amendments, into which he interpolated some caustic criticisms of the action of the Senate and of the influence of corporations in shaping legislation, which, he charged, was encroaching more and more on the rights of the people. In the course of his speech Mr. Duke declared that he had found nothing in the amendments under consideration which he believed a straight and sensible man would endorse. The speaker paid his respects to the lobbylists, and delared that the finger prints of the corporation lawyers could easily be detected on the laws relating to corporations. Finally Mr. Duke declared that he would rather have no law at all on the subject of eminent domain than one which authorized corporations to desecrate the graves of the dead in the name of progress, when that progress, go called, involved discrimination in rates against our own people and in favor of the larger cities. After some further discussion of the amended bill the House voted non concurrence in the Senate amendment and asked for a conference. The Setate had adjourned when this action we taken, and hence it could not be cefamunicated.

Mr. Early's bill authorizing the University of Virgina to send property to the Rt. HARD ON SENATORS.

In answerito a uestion by Mr. Cumming Mr. Juke declared that he had found nothing in the amendments under consideration which he believed a straight and sensibly man would endorse.

Mr. Cumming said he was to a certain extent with Mr. Duke, and he wanted to know if the latter favezed any of the amendments, so that the issue might be narrowed.

Mr. Duke proceeded with his remarkr, and he prased the Constitutional Convention for requiring roil calls on the passage if bills, declaring that under the old systm measures had been rushed through when nearly all the members

This peaker became involved in a spirited (colloquy with Mr. Cardwell, after the former had declared that the corpositions could not only take the home upid the school house, but could now obsecrate the cemeteries of the State.

Mr. Cardwell denked that there could or viuld be any descration of grave yards, and Mr. Duke, with upiffited hands, ontended for his point, and said that by the help of God he would never consent that there should be any such proceeding under forms of law.

The speaker said all the inroads alleged had been made in the name of progress, and yet the people had been all along suffered at the hands of corporations. He gaid that a progress that caused his people to pay as much freight to Richmond on their produce as it cost to New York was not such a progress as he desired for his people. Mr. Duke declared, in conclusion, that he would prefer no bix at all on the subject to an improper and unfair one, and he asked that the amendments of the Senate be rejected.

The accompanying map has been carefully compiled from United States documents by The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio. The figures were taken from the latest mortal statistics published by the government and entirely agree with the archives kept at The Hartman Santartum.

The figures on each State represent the total number of deaths from catarrhal diseases during the last census year. This is an appailing state of affairs.
